PRINCIPLES AND GUIDELINES FOR ETHICAL REPORTING ON CHILDREN¹

INTRODUCTION

Reporting on children and young people has its special challenges. In some instances the act of reporting on children places them or other children at risk of retribution or stigmatization. Maria & Joseph's Ministry to the Poor & Maria & Joseph's Ministry Philippines Foundation has developed these principles and guideline to assist those who generate communications or otherwise report on issues affecting children. These principles and guidelines offered are those both Maria & Joseph's Ministry to the Poor & Maria & Joseph's Ministry Philippines Foundation believes will help media to cover children in an age-appropriate and sensitive manner. The guidelines and principles are meant to support the best intentions of ethical reporters: serving the public interest without compromising the rights, safety or interests of children as they go about their daily lives.

PRINCIPLES

1. The dignity and rights of every child are to be respected in every circumstance.
2. In interviewing and reporting on children, special attention is to be paid to each child's right to privacy and confidentiality, to have their opinions heard, to participate in decisions affecting them and to be protected from harm and retribution, including the potential of harm and retribution.
3. The best interests of each child are to be protected over any other consideration, including over advocacy for children's issues and the promotion of child rights.
4. When trying to determine the best interests of a child, the child's right to have their views taken into account are to be given due weight in accordance with their age and maturity.
5. Those closest to the child's situation and best able to assess it are to be consulted about the political, social and cultural ramifications of any reportage.
6. Do not publish a story or an image that might put the child, siblings or peers at risk even when identities are changed, obscured or not used.

GUIDELINES FOR INTERVIEWING CHILDREN

1. Do no harm to any child; avoid questions, attitudes or comments that are judgmental, insensitive to cultural values, that place a child in danger or expose a child to humiliation, or that reactivate a child's pain and grief from traumatic events
2. Do not discriminate in choosing children to interview because of sex, race, age, religion, status, educational background or physical abilities.

¹ These guidelines and principles are borrowed and modestly adapted from UNICEF's Ethical Guidelines. Our appreciation is extended to UNICEF's Communications Division.

3. No staging: Do not ask children to tell a story or take an action that is not part of or consistent with their own or their community history.
4. Ensure that the child or guardian knows they are talking with a reporter. Explain the purpose of the interview and its intended use.
5. Whenever possible obtain permission from the child and his or her guardian for all interviews, videotaping and, for documentary photographs. When possible and appropriate, this permission should be in writing. Permission must be obtained in circumstances that ensure that the child and guardian are not coerced in any way and that they understand that they are part of a story that might be disseminated locally and globally. This is usually only ensured if the permission is obtained in the child's language and if the decision is made in consultation with an adult the child trusts.
6. Pay attention to where and how the child is interviewed. Limit the number of interviewers and photographers. Try to make certain that children are comfortable and able to tell their story without outside pressure, including from the interviewer. In film, video and radio interviews, consider what the choice of visual or audio background might imply about the child and her or his life and story. Ensure that the child would not be endangered or adversely affected by showing their home, community or general whereabouts.

GUIDELINES FOR REPORTING ON CHILDREN

1. Do not further stigmatize any child; avoid categorizations or descriptions that expose a child to negative reprisals - including additional physical or psychological harm, or to lifelong abuse, discrimination or rejection by their local communities.
2. Always provide an accurate context for the child's story or image.
3. Always change the name and obscure the visual identity of any child who is identified as:
 - a. A victim of sexual abuse or exploitation,
 - b. A perpetrator of physical or sexual abuse,
 - c. HIV positive, or living with AIDS, unless the child, a parent or a guardian gives fully informed consent,
 - d. Charged or convicted of a crime.
4. In certain circumstances of risk or potential risk of harm or retribution, change the name and obscure the visual identity of any child who is identified as:
 - a. A current or former child combatant,
 - b. An asylum seeker, a refugee or an internal displaced person.
5. In certain cases, using a child's identity - their name and/or recognizable image - is in the child's best interests. However, when the child's identity is used, they must still be protected against harm and supported through any stigmatization or reprisals. Some examples of these special cases are:
 - a. When a child initiates contact with the reporter, wanting to exercise their right to freedom of expression and their right to have their opinion heard.

- b. When a child is part of a sustained program of activism or social mobilization and wants to be so identified.
 - c. When a child is engaged in a psychosocial program and claiming their name and identity is part of their healthy development.
6. Confirm the accuracy of what the child has to say, either with other children or an adult, preferably with both.
 7. When in doubt about whether a child is at risk, report on the general situation for children rather than on an individual child, no matter how newsworthy the story.
